ARMY WESTLAV ARMY OF A QUARTER MIL-

FRANCE THIS SPRING.

GIVEN WARM WELCOME

Russian Troops Given a Rousing Reception as They Parade Streets of Marseilles Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Marseilles, France, April 21.—The coming of Russian troops to the western front has been talked of by military people for two or three months. The reason, as now explained, is that it is easier for Russia to arm and supply fighting material to Russian troops on the western front than on the eastern.

Russia still has many hundred thousand more men under training than she can use on her fighting lines, because the Russian problem continues to be not how to get men, but how to get them to the front. The allies can obviously provide complete equipment for Russians more easily in France than by shipping to Russia. Possibly a quarter of a million men will be sent into France this spring.

Ovation to Slavs.

After field service held at the orthodox Russian church at Camp Mirabeau, the Russian troops paraded the principal streets of the city, with flags, guns and full military equipment. The newcomers received an ovation as they passed through the crowds.

The Russians show no ill effects of their long journey, and already are engaged in exercises and drills, displaying the fine equipment and soldierly bearing of the picked men making up the contingent. Officers of the Russian army are the recipients of numerous telegrams from many allied quarters.

The authorities decline to permit mention of the number of men who arrived.

French Make Progress.

Paris, April 21.—The French continue to make progress in the region of Verdun in the fighting of last night. The French command announced that this afternoon reports the capture of German trenches and of four officers and 150 men.

East of the Meuse a fierce German attack was repulsed. In the sector south of Haudemont wood the French made gains.

Close Arctic Ports.

Washington, April 21.—The Russian embassy dispatches regarding the closing of Arctic and White sea ports, the embassy, that the suspension of traffic will be complete except in case of vessels carrying government cargoes, and even in that case they can be admitted to the port only by a special permit from Petrograd.

It is assumed by the officials here that the closure is a purely military measure incident to use of the ports for embarkation for the heavy Russian reinforcements going forward to France.

The necessity of guarding the troop transports have obliged the Russian government to regard as enemy vessels all but government owned or chartered ships, and to reduce to a minimum the danger of a capture of neutral vessels the ports have been closed.

PRISONERS CAUGHT
COMING OUT TUNNELAlleged Car Robbers Captured as They Were Emerging Out Tunnel From Mauston Jail.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

La Crosse, April 21.—His suspicions aroused on account of their previous escape, Harold Benson, Milwaukee railroad detective, decided to make a search of the jail at Mauston where Harold Johnson and Jack Lloyd, who were in jail at Mauston caught with a series of car robberies along the Milwaukee road, were safe.

Upon investigation last night he found the prisoners had dug a hole in the wall of the county jail, and Lloyd was captured with his head through the hole in the act of escaping. Both were caught. Search of the men revealed a number of burglar tools and authorities are now investigating to learn who furnished the prisoners with them.

Johnson and Lloyd escaped from prison at Portage three weeks ago and after an exciting chase were captured at Elroy and taken to jail at Mauston. In order to lessen their chances of escape, their outside clothing has been taken from them, leaving the men in their underwear.

EXPECT FITZGERALD
WILL GET POSITIONGovernor's Private Investigator Will Probably Be Appointed on Railroad Commission.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., April 21.—All things indicate that when the resignation of Halvor Erickson as a member of the Wisconsin railroad commission is finally accepted, that W. N. Fitzgerald will be appointed as his successor. Mr. Fitzgerald has been under the executive office for the last two days and it is admitted by those who know that he will probably be appointed. It is claimed that the appointment would go to Senator George E. Hummel of Superior if he desired it, but it is declared that Senator Hummel does not care for the position. Fitzgerald has recently made a survey of the financial condition of the charitable and penal institutions of the state.

When Commissioner Erickson leaves the commission a new chairman will be selected. It is claimed that Carl D. Jackson will be selected the chairman.

Work.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Boston, April 21.—Seven thousand bluejackets at the Charleston Navy Yard were put in overalls today for the purpose of making the thirty war vessels in the harbor ready for sea at the earliest possible hour. It was authoritatively stated that virtually every ship would be at the top notch of efficiency in fifteen days. The emergency men being employed because of the difficulty in obtaining sufficient civilian mechanics. Half of the 7,000 men had been recalled from furlough and shore leaves.

"It is a measure of preparedness," it was officially explained, "the necessity of which was increased by the fact that we have been handicapped for months by the shortage of civilian workmen and material. If we are to make the ships ready for sea at an early notice, repairs must be completed soon, and it was found the only way to accomplish this was to put the bluejackets to work."

The vessels to be overhauled include six battleships, with a total of about 5,000 officers and men, ten torpedo boat destroyers, three scout cruisers, one submarine and several auxiliary ships.

JOINT SHAM BATTLE
PLANNED AS A TEST

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, April 21.—A sham battle between the cadet corps of the University of Wisconsin and the University of Illinois is the suggestion of students and alumni of each institution. It is claimed that the merits of each regiment is so equalized from many standpoints, that a sham battle would be one of the most interesting events in western college circles. The Illinois forces admit their force to be stronger than that of Wisconsin, and have issued an informal challenge to the Cardinal regulars under the command of P. C. Wright. Alumni of Wisconsin have sent letters urging such a battle.

REVELATIONS OPENING A "FIELD WITHOUT LIMITS."

MAY LEAD TO ARRESTS

Number of Men Involved in Pro-German Activities Much Larger Than Federal Agents Had Supposed.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, April 21.—Additional indictments of German sympathizers in this country will be asked by the department of justice as a result of revelations made by Horst Von Der Goltz, alleged German spy, brought to New York by Scotland Yard detectives. This was learned authoritatively here today. Von Der Goltz' statement was said by department officials to have opened a "field practically without limits."

The government will follow every lead. It was understood today that the number of men involved in Von Der Goltz' activities in the United States is much larger than had been thought heretofore. The pending New York indictments against five of Von Der Goltz' assistants were said to embrace the alleged leader in the conspiracy to blow up the Welland Canal, but the indictment of men involved in minor ways in the alleged conspiracy probably will be sought soon. It was understood indictments will be asked also in connection with Von Der Goltz' activities.

Many of the allegations in the sworn statement of Horst Von Der Goltz, made public in London last night, have been known to the department of justice for weeks. An investigation has been made particularly into the activities of German consuls in Chicago, St. Paul and Baltimore.

Officials said today the Baltimore investigation was the only one to produce results and the facts collected there will be laid before the grand jury. The Chicago and St. Paul investigations are not now expected to lead to any court proceedings.

It was said Von Der Goltz' statement that Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, had advised against an invasion of Canada, proposed by Captains Bodged and Von Paven, the recalled spies, had been confirmed some time ago from other sources.

LAKE MEN PROTEST
CANADA'S WAR ORDERLodge Complaint at Washington Relative to Dominion's Plan to Search Vessels for Belligerent Seamen.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, April 21.—The Lake Carriers' association today notified the department of commerce, it has information that the Canadian government intends in the future to examine all ships at the Canadian ports and remove sailors of belligerent nations.

The association protested that exercise of such authority would tie up navigation on the Great Lakes. The protest was turned over to the state department.

The association took the ground that such action would mean that hundreds of German, Austrian and Hungarian sailors would be removed from their ships and in consequence the number of certified seamen required under the new seamen's law could not be obtained.

Move Denied at Ottawa.

Ottawa, April 21.—It is officially stated here there is no foundation for the fear the Canadian government contemplates examining ships touching at Canadian lake ports and removal of sailor subjects of belligerent nations. At the same time, the department, which would have cognizance of such a step, it was emphatically denied any action of that nature was planned.

Not an Official Protest.

Detroit, April 21.—William Livingson, president of the Detroit Lake Carriers' association, declared today the association had not made an official protest to Washington regarding a report that the Canadian government intended to remove sailors of belligerent nations from Great Lake steamers touching Canadian ports. He said some vessel owners may have protested.

YOUTH SOUNDS FIRE
ALARM MAILING CARDTwelve or Fourteen Year Old Boy
Vainly Tries to Mail Easter Card in Fire Alarm Box.

It is getting to be a joke about people mistaking the fire alarm boxes for the mail boxes. A few minutes after one o'clock this afternoon a boy about twelve or fourteen years old, went to mail a postal card. He picked up the fire alarm box on the corner of North Bluff at East Milwaukee street to mail his "Easter card."

The lad was just about tall enough to reach the opening catch of the fire box. He opened it, tampered with the hook a few seconds and during his intrusion he dropped the card. The boy walked nonchalantly across the street to find a real green colored mail box. On his way down the street he stepped and knocked the full complement of the fire department coming up the street at a rapid pace. Chief Klein recently repainted the alarm boxes a brilliant red with the vain hopes that the practice of mistaking the alarm boxes for mail boxes would be avoided.

This morning the department had a run to the residence of Thomas Fox, South Pearl and Pleasant streets, where a bad chimney fire threatened to do serious damage. Occupants of the house and the firemen prevented any damage with chemicals and hand pumps.

Men Deny Menace.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

El Paso, April 21.—Movements of American troops along the border to the army base at Columbus, New Mexico, where they will be held in readiness to reinforce General Pershing's army in case of necessity, still continued today. Dispatches from the front indicated everything was quiet, and that American troops in Mexico were awaiting developments at Washington before making any further effort to capture Villa.

Officials of the de facto government said there was no basis for the reports that uprisings were imminent in northern Durango and lower Chihuahua. It was explained at Juarez that the movements of the Carranza troops into the Pinal district was not intended as a threat to bar the further advance of the American forces, but that the de facto soldiers had been sent there to preserve order and prevent destruction of private property.

General Carranza, Mexican consul, said today that the work of the American expedition was concluded and that he hoped that in a few days the order would come from Washington for the troops to be withdrawn.

"We have the situation in hand," said Mr. Garcia, "and the few remaining bands of Villa men are no more than stragglers. The Villa cause is broken and if Villa still lives his prestige is destroyed."

Mr. Garcia said he expected that the economic situation would soon improve in Mexico.

Mexican Date to Cabinet.

Washington, April 21.—All data at hand bearing on the Mexican situation was assembled at the state and war departments today for submission to the cabinet today.

President Wilson and his official advisers were expected to review the Mexican problem fully for the first time since General Carranza argued that the American expeditionary forces be withdrawn.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Omaha, April 21.—Late returns from the Nebraska presidential primary are increasing the lead given earlier to five opponents of William Jennings Bryan in the race for delegates to the democratic national convention. Bryan is now in sixth place on a ticket of seven, only four of whom will be elected.

C. W. Bryan, brother of the former secretary of state, and mayor of Lincoln, has been beaten for the gubernatorial nomination on the democratic ticket, according to returns from more than two-thirds of the precincts of the state. The only opponent to be Keith Neville of North Platte, who is now leading Bryan by 10,000 votes. Bryan's campaign was conducted on a prohibition platform and he appealed to voters in his brother's behalf.

Senator G. F. Hitchcock, candidate for the democratic nomination for United States senator, has been nominated by a majority of over 1,000 votes. J. Bryan toured the state in opposition to Senator Hitchcock.

MRS. EATON'S GRAFT
CHARGES UNFOUNDED
COMMISSION FINDSAcquit Mrs. Rowe of Compelling Employe in Chicago Municipal Office to Contribute to Political Fund.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, April 21.—Mrs. Louise Osborn Rowe, head of the public welfare commission of Chicago, was found not guilty of the charge that she had compelled Mrs. Page Waller Eaton, a superintendent in the department of public welfare, to contribute a third of her $3,000 yearly salary to an alleged political fund, is a report issued today by the public service commission which heard the case.

Mrs. Eaton charged Mrs. Rowe with collecting the tribute on the pretext it was for the assistance of a needy relative of Mayor Win. Hale Thompson. The commission found Mrs. Eaton's charges were "unsubstantiated and uncorroborated."

The use of the "Mazie says you've got to come across" phrase imputed to Mrs. Rowe by Mrs. Eaton, and referring to the wife of the mayor, was the subject of a separate decision by Captain Percy Coffin of the commission. He said:

"The expression bore the same relation to the Eaton-Rowe controversy as the red, green and purple lights do to a well managed phreatic production. It was an artful phrase, meant to throw a glamour on a new political diversion, a female strife. It was disrespectful and uncalled for."

JAP ENVOY CONFERS
ABOUT IMMIGRATIONObjections Are Offered By Nippon Government Over Exclusion of Japanese.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, April 21.—Viscount Chinda, the Japanese ambassador, conferred with President Wilson today over the provision of the pending immigration bill which proposed to enact into law the so-called gentlemen's agreement restricting the immigration of Japanese laborers. A memorandum on the subject had been presented to the state department.

The proposed inclusion in a law of an informal agreement, which Japan has promised on honor to fulfill, according to the agreement between former Secretary Root and former Ambassador Takahira is understood to be repugnant to the Japanese government.

Other proposed Asiatic exclusion features of the bill, which has passed the house and been reported to the senate are understood to be the subjects of objection.

For many obvious reasons the attitude of the state department toward the bill is one of disinclination to irritate the situation between Japan and the United States, which has been smoldering since the California anti-alien land law negotiation went into its definite stage three years ago this summer.

"If Germany Gives In It Will Be Un-

French Authority on International Law.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, April 21.—The comment of French press on President Wilson's address may be summed up in a few words which the Petite Parisien prints in large type a heading over the text of the speech:

"Never has the head of a state pronounced such grave words against a state with which it was not at war."

The president's address has made a deep impression in France. All the newspapers give it the place of honor. It overshadows the British cabinet crisis, and even the arrival of Russia's forces at Marseilles. The speech is not merely a formal injunction, the Petit Parisien says; it is a closely knit and stern indictment pronounced in the name of all neutrals "against German barbarity and duplicity, marking the German government with a brand which nothing can efface."

The Matin characterizes the address as epoch making and continues: "The French people are almost sovereign head of a hundred million free citizens mounts the rostrum in congress to declare 'We are the spokesmen of rights of humanity,' he has performed an act of immense moral importance. It is in the name of legality that this statesman having behind him the country on which the whole world 'We will not tolerate injustice.'"

"In these few words his whole message is summed up. It is an historical event which is deserving of our admiration as one of the noblest acts in the memory of mankind."

Steven Pichon, former foreign minister, says in the Petit Journal that the firmness and solemnity with which Mr. Wilson made known his resolution to congress, recalls the greatest day of American history. He continues:

"Whether or not the Germans disavow the justice and liberty against which they are caught in their own trap, all their presumption falls to the ground before the calm and resolute attitude of a great country standing up for the rights of humanity."

Under the heading "German confronted with an honest man," Jean Herdett, one of the leading French authorities on international policies says:

"The German government must be surprised to find itself in the face with the only force of which it is ignorant—conscience. If Germany gives in, it would be an unforgettable humiliation, for it would be the triumph of the right of justice and liberty against which Germany went to war."

OUR LINES OF DEFENSE.

"Should we become embroiled in this war, we have three lines of defense. These are the defenses of men, of money and of food—for the allies. Any attempted defenses by munitions would be only interference and confusion, harmful to ourselves and to the allies with whom we must co-operate for self-protection," says an eastern exchange that sees war a possibility.

"It is an open question whether Germany is not seeking to end this war by forcing in the United States. The Hohenzollerns now know they are beaten, but how can they confess it and get peace with no money within their borders? If the United States properly enters the war with supplies of finance, food and men, the hopelessness of the German position would become visible not only to the whole world, but to the remotest hamlet of Germany, the southeastern states and Turkey.

"It is difficult to believe that Germany should wish to imperil her future commerce, commercial relations and shipping relations by an open break with the United States, unless this be the only way out with safety for her reigning powers.

"The termination of this war is not to be found in exhaustion of guns or shells. These are now practically inexhaustible on both sides. The termination of this war will be in sight the moment the central powers are seen in a hopeless minority as respects supplies of men, money or food.

"Except in submarine warfare the United States could exchange no shots as the result of a break in relations with Germany; but the resources of 100,000,000 of Americans added to one side of this gigantic struggle would have titanic influence to the remotest corners of the earth.

"Can it be possible that Germany is inviting it? Our acceptance of the submarine challenge of Germany would insure a satisfactory termination of the war and security of the position of the United States in the world settlements."

DEMOCRATIC REASONING.

Democratic reasoning—if it is permissible to designate the peculiar mental processes of the democrats by so designated a term—consists of insistence that the European war is responsible for the abject failure of the Underwood bill as a revenue producer and, regardless of the facts and figures presented to the contrary by democratic official statisticians, are determined to impose additional direct taxation on the pretext that the deficit in revenues is purely temporary. The statisticians calculate that the total foreign trade for 1915 will amount to six billions of dollars, and that the imports for this year will be considerably in excess of two billions. Had the democrats been content with reasonably moderate tariff revision, or even had they been loyal to their own time-honored slogan, "a tariff for revenue only," there would have been no need, whatever, with such imports as taxes, for imposing numerous burdensome and vexatious special and direct taxes. But the democrats, in the party, ably abetted by Woodrow Wilson and William J. Bryan, took the hit in their teeth and, against the advice of such experienced legislators as Oscar Underwood and other members of the ways and means committee, passed a bill which has played havoc with the treasury as it has with many American producers, which would have played havoc with the farmers had not the European war temporarily suspended foreign production, and which would bring unparalleled disaster to this country should the war end before it was repealed.

WISE SELECTION.

The selection of Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio, for temporary chairman of the republican national convention appears to have been a peculiarly happy solution of a difficult problem. Senator Harding is not closely identified with any faction of the party but is liked by all. He is an orator of marked ability, has a fine voice which will carry to the farthest end of the convention hall, is a man of pre-eminent common sense and wisdom and, while comparatively new in the senate, has a fine record in his own state. While it is true that Senator Harding put President Taft in nomination four years ago, that act was regarded as largely a device to him because the president was the favorite son of his state, and he has not been regarded as especially the representative of the "old guard," so-called, but rather as a progressive republican essentially loyal to his party. Both radicals and conservatives look to him to deliver a masterly address at the opening of the convention, to launch the great meeting on its difficult labor in the most befitting manner and with all the enthusiasm the occasion calls for.

FARMERS GET WAR ORDERS.

Congressman W. E. Humphrey of Washington announces that the "Democrat" point to the prosperity of the farmer. True, we have the largest wheat crop in our history, and we have sold more to Europe than ever before. Our sale of wheat to Europe during the first year of the war compared with the first year of the present tariff law in time of peace increased from $103,595,000 worth to $316,262,000 worth, a gain of 205 per cent.

"During the year of peace we sold to Europe wheat to the value of $181,484,000 worth. In the year of war we sold $567,607,000, a gain of 213 per cent.

"In the year of peace we sold to Europe horses to the value of $3,177,000. In the year of war we sold them horses to the value of $82,276,000, a gain of 2,490 per cent.

"In the year of peace we sold to Europe mules to the value of $622,000. In the year of war we sold them mules to the value of $18,041,000, a gain of 2,795 per cent.

"During the year of peace we sold to Europe hay to the value of $790,000. During the year of war we sold to Europe hay to the value of $2,263,000, a gain of 233 per cent.

"During the year of peace we sold to Europe meats and dairy products to the value of $138,736,000. During the year of war we sold them meats and dairy products to the value of $243,098,000, a gain of 75 per cent.

"During the year of peace we sold to Europe sugar to the value of $36,816,000, a gain of 748 per cent.

"Why should not the farmers of this country be prosperous when they are feeding the greatest armies that this world has ever seen? Does the democratic party think that there is a farmer in all America that can be deceived as to the reason of their present prosperity or that has forgotten the conditions that prevailed in this country the year before the war and the first year of the Underwood law upon our statute books?"

Some of the people who can't go to church because they would catch cold from the windows let down a few inches at the top will get out in their automobiles, and run fifty miles an hour on a windy Sunday.

Conservation of resources is a popular cry, but the young men indignantly deny that they turn up their trousers to prevent them from wearing out.

The noble Carranza troops having laid in a sufficient stock of dice, playing cards, and poker chips, are now almost ready to start in pursuit of Villa.

An ultimatum will now be issued to Germany, informing them if they don't stop blowing up our citizens, we will send them another note.

The children refute the charge that they don't take proper care of their school supplies, by embellishing them with lovely pencil sketches.

Many of our intelligent patriots stay away from the primaries so that they can feel free to criticize everything that is done.

A judicious measure of preparedness for the household consists in persuading his wife to rake up the back yard.

Our aliens can't claim that they are Americanized until they have learned to collect pay for their political influence.

After paying a gasoline bill of $40 or $50, there is frequently 10 cents change left to put in the contribution box.

With the constant fires and explosions, every day is July Fourth in the war munitions plants.

The river and harbor bill may be large, but it takes pork to carry the caucuses.

There may be other ways of making a living besides working for or living with your wife's folks, but none of 'em has ever been discovered.

Grandpa Gibbins says 'jedin' by the arguments, it is pretty hard to tell whether the country is being saved or is going to the dogs. He will probably find out that neither argument is correct.

One of the pleasant things in this life is to see a baldheaded fellow on a street corner sellin' hair restorer.

There is a little something wrong with most of your friends, but there ain't nothin' the matter with you yourself.

There are a lot of experts on the national currency question sittin' around the corner grocery who can't pay their bills.

Mr. and Mrs. Lem Higgins have sold their solid mahogany parlor table and their piano to buy gasoline.

People are gettin' so they can struggle along without arctics and red flannel chest protectors.

A traveling man died of old age while waitin' for a train at our depot. Ridin' on the back end of a motor-cycle is about the hardest way of a young woman to win a husband.

Our Ideas.
Of a golden opportunity—Sitting next a man with a golden scarf pin during dark scene in the theatre.
Of a steady job—Trying to save up enough cigar coupons to get a 25-cent pipe.
Of nothing to read—The ordinary 10-cent magazine.
Of a stitch in time—Leaving the house locked up—just before the man arrives to read the gas meter.
Of a sad experience—Two back-sponder buttons leaving at the same time.
Of a miracle—Hearing a life insurance agent talking about anything else.
Of a lift-handed compliment—Letter from a publishing house praising your story, but rejecting it.

PORPORATO DODGING GERMAN SHRAPNEL

Jean Porporato.

Jean Porporato, the Italian race driver, who captured second place and $21,000 in prize money in the Chicago motor derby of 1915, will not play tag with fame and fortune on American speedways during the 1918 season. He has become an ambulance driver in the Italian army.

Optimist and Pessimist.
The optimist says: "Go ahead; there's not a chance to lose; the time is now and, on the dead, you really can't refuse."

The pessimist says: "Wait a bit, and look before you leap; if there's any good to it, the chance will surely keep."

The optimist sees but the sun, the pessimist sees the rain; the optimist prepares for fun, the pessimist prepares for pain.

The optimist pulls forward, and the pessimist pulls back; the one throws wide the throttle and the other sands the track. This world would be monotonous if with no one 'round to raise a fuss 'twould be a tire some game. The optimist with his glad tone, the pessimist so blue, we really couldn't get along unless we had the two.

A word to the wise—to those who advertise. Use ads every day; our word for it, they'll surely pay.

Words Often Misspelled.

Here are twenty-one common words frequently misspelled. Get some one to dictate the following paragraph to you and see how many of them you can spell correctly.

"The 'privilege' of 'separating' ninety miscellaneous calendars arranged in two 'parallel' lines was against the 'principles' of the 'superintendent,' so his 'niece' not to 'disappoint' the 'government' or cause it to 'lose business' removed the 'principal' calendars and thus 'relieved' her uncle of a strain which might have brought on a 'disease.' Then she 'believed' it had become 'truly necessary' for her to 'receive' her instruction in 'grammar.'—American Boy.

Flight of the Locust.

Locusts in South Africa are very tiny creatures, at most two or three inches long, yet giant jawed and shelled in a grim brown mail so hard that as they strike it causes a sharp smart. They travel in such numbers that it takes them four or five days to pass over. The scouts alone, hovering in patches like red dust clouds, are numerous enough to destroy the vegetation of a district, while the main body, high up in the air, a host of little black specks, stretches out into an interminable screen between heaven and earth. The fanning of their wings brings a fresh coolness over the hot earth even in the depth of summer. There seems to be a fresh breath of ozone as of the sea.

The Way to Float.

This is the advice of an old swimmer to those who cannot swim: "Any human being who will have the presence of mind to clasp the hands behind his back, and turn the face toward the zenith may float at ease and in perfect safety in tolerably still water. When you first find yourself in deep water you have only to consider yourself an empty pitcher. Let your mouth and nose and not the top of your heavy head be the highest part of you and you are safe. But thrust up one of your bony hands and down you go—turning up the handle tips over the pitcher." There are reason and logic in this.

Some Shakespeare Statistics.

There are 106,007 lines in Shakespeare and 814,780 words.
The longest play is "Hamlet." It has 3,980 lines.
The shortest is the "Comedy of Errors," with 1,777 lines.
The number of characters is 1,277, of which 157 are females.
The longest part of any character is that of Hamlet, who has 11,810 words to deliver.
The part with the longest word in it is that of Costard in "Love's Labor Lost," who tells Moth that he is "not so long by the head as honorificabilitudinitas."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

The Daily Novelette

Little Roland.

Occasionally a man takes a day off to celebrate the anniversary of his birth, but a woman usually takes a year off.—Prof. Simp.

"All well, wife," said John Rumbles, the honest farmer. "Though our corn was stricken with quinsy this year, and our pigs all got the ear and tail disease, and our cabbages were all hollow, and our wheat had appendicitis, we have the consolation of knowing that we have a model son. Just think, Roland has never smoked a cigarette in his whole life."

"Nor anything else for that matter," replied Susan, his honest wife. "And he would no more think of taking strong drink than he would of lying."

"True," assented honest John with a proud smile. "And the regular hours he keeps!"

"Yes," put in honest Susan eagerly, "to bed right after supper every night, regular as clockwork."

And for a while John smoked in contemplative silence while Susan knitted away in her easy chair.

"But of course, there's this," said John at length. "We can't tell how he'll be later on. We must remember he's only six months old."

"Ah, John, we mustn't borrow trouble," we have enough already, goodness knows," smiled Susan, and the two simple souls smiled and listened to the snoring of the child in the cradle.

Just outside the police station, Helen and Rhinelander—Spike listening—were conferring as to what should be done in the awkward emergency facing them. How could they now save their property from Seagrue's eager clutches? They moved away together slowly, just as Ward and Adams, having got the real handbag from the sergeant, walked out of the station. The two men encountered the halting and perplexed trio. Rhinelander's roving eye fell on the bag as Ward passed him. He cried out and pointed. Ward and Adams turned nervously. "Stop thief!" yelled Rhine-and push it well down into the neck of the bottle; then put in on top of this a three or four-inch layer of clean sand. On top of the sand is placed the water to be filtered. The accompanying illustration shows a convenient way to arrange the filter for use. Simply cut a round hole in the side of a store-box to admit the neck of the bottle, and place a pail beneath to catch the filtered water as it drips through the sand and cotton.

Heart and Home PROBLEMS

—By—
MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters may be addressed to
MRS. THOMPSON
in care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-five years old and I have been married seven years. I have four children and a husband who is the only man I have ever loved. He is good about giving me as much money as he can and he is very lovable to the children, but he never gives me any love. I do all I can to make him happy and comfortable, but he doesn't seem to appreciate it. Every afternoon I get myself and the children cleaned up and we walk to meet him. Sometimes I am so tired I don't know what to do, but even then he doesn't say anything kind to me or show that he appreciates what I do. I go up to him and put my arms around his neck to show that I am willing to be loved the way I used to be, and even then he only shakes off my arms and walks out of the room. I can't stand living this way any longer. It nearly breaks my heart to have the man I love so indifferent to me. When my husband comes home worried I ask him what is wrong, but he won't tell me. He refuses to tell me anything about himself. When his father or mother come to the house he talks about things to them that he never mentions to me and I am very much embarrassed. It is terrible to be left out of his life entirely.

UNHAPPY WIFE.
My dear little woman, in sacrificing yourself for your husband and letting him see how utterly you love him you are losing the very thing you so much want. If you don't seek his love or show interest in affairs that concern him, I feel sure that he will be anxious to have you do so. Let the children go to meet him, but remain at home yourself preparing some dish for supper or tending to a task that needs attention. For him to notice a change in you will be the best thing in the world. After supper keep busy and give him a chance to miss you. Don't question him when he seems to have something on his mind, and you just see if he doesn't tell you of his own accord and just as thoroughly as he put his arms around you if he wants to, but don't try to force him to do so. A man likes to be the pursuer after marriage as well as before and if his wife doesn't give him the chance he loses interest in her.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) My boy friend has invited me to take an excursion trip this summer. Would it be all right to go if I have a chap-eron?

(2) What will fill hollow places in the neck?

(3) I would like to go on the stage. To whom should I apply for the position?

(4) My boy friend comes a long way to see me and brings me sweets and flowers. Do you think he cares for me? GRACE DARLING.

(1) It depends upon the nature of the excursion. A girl should not go on an expensive trip with a boy unless she is engaged to him, because it puts her under obligations to him just as accepting jewelry would. Of course a chaperon would be necessary.

(2) If the hollow places are massaged every night with cocoa butter they will fill up. The process is slow and must be done regularly.

(3) Apply to the manager of some company.

(4) He surely likes you very much or he would not show you so much attention.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Please give me Andrew Carnegie's address. (2) There is a boy who lives in a different town who comes here every two weeks. The girls I go with are all crazy about him. I like him very much, but I can't talk to him without the others getting angry. He takes me out once in awhile. Do you think he cares about the other girls? BESS.

(1) Address: 2 E. 91 St., New York City.
(2) He would seek their company if he cared for them.

the hardest thing in the world. It's much easier to die than to be the one you've done things for. You enjoy their society because they stand for your credit instead of your debit account. You've bought the right to patronize them and who wouldn't rather patronize than be patronized?

As a rule I disapprove of the Cynic's cynicism; but I must admit he has some grounds for it here. Too often greed is only a lively sense of future favors. Just the other day I heard a woman who has received much from another woman doing her best by insinuation and comparison and false praise (never a word of open criticism did she speak, she is too wily for that) to depreciate the other's generosity.

The burden of generosity is a heavy one to bear. A man who would return a favor if he had the means and the opportunity, lacking them, will come to dislike his benefactor for keeping him in debt.

Sometimes he shows it, as this woman did, again he hides it under a pretense of gratitude, down in the depths of his heart where it festers and poisons his character.

Self-love is one of the strongest human instincts and to be kept under an obligation is painful to it. It puts us in the attitude of looking up, and self-love does not like to look up. It wants to put itself on a level with its benefactor and does so not by raising itself by gratitude but by hunting flaws in the character of the benefactor.

Both Have to Walk the Chalk Line.
The only thing harder than to give graciously is to receive graciously.

The relationship between benefactor and recipient is difficult to keep sweet and sane. On the benefactor's side there is the danger of being patronizing or exacting, while the recipient must walk the line between sycophancy and ingratitude.

Friendship is safest in an atmosphere of independence. And yet, receiving should be capable both of receiving and giving.

Because ingratitude is common does not mean it is any more excusable. And because true gratitude is rare does not mean it is any less right and beautiful. On the contrary.

Household Hints

SANDWICHES.

Bread for sandwiches should be twenty-four hours old.

Do not spread butter or filling upon the bread before it is cut from the loaf. When so treated, the butter or filling will seep to the edges of the bread and be liable to soil the fingers.

Cream the butter, using a small wooden spoon for the purpose, and then it can be spread upon the most delicate bread without crumbling.

Sandwiches, except when vegetables and dressing are used, may be prepared early in the day, placed in a paper bag, covered with a slightly dampened cloth and set away in a cool place until such time as they are wanted. Or they may be wrapped in paraffine paper.

Head the list of beverages most acceptably served with sandwiches. Tea comes next. Coffee and chocolate are admissible only with the dairy varieties in which fruit or some rich sweetmeat is used.

Russian Sandwiches. Slightly butter thin slices of bread; moisten fingered olives with mayonnaise dressing and spread upon the buttered slices; then remove skin and dust the fat thickly with bread crumbs. Stuff with the whole olives and brown in a hot oven.

Kedgeree.—One-half pound ham, two quarts Brussels sprouts, one bunch watercress, three-fourths cups chopped chives, one teaspoon salt, whole cloves, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, one tablespoon mixed pickle spice, dry bread crumbs. Parboil the ham for thirty minutes and then drain. Chop together the vegetables as fine as possible and add a little water to make a paste. Season with salt, pepper. Then, with a long sharp knife make incisions through the ham about an inch and a half apart. Stuff each one with the vegetable mixture, pushing it in with a blunt instrument that will fit the incision. When the ham is stuffed, roll tightly in cheesecloth, plunge into boiling water, add the pickle spice and boil gently till tender, from four to five hours. Let cool in the ham liquor; then remove skin and dust the fat thickly with bread crumbs. Stuff with the whole cloves and brown in a hot oven.

Oatmeal Hermit.—Put two cups of oatmeal, one cup of seeded raisins and one-half cup of English walnuts through the coarse chopper of a meat grinder. Mix one cup of white sugar, salt, one cup of melted butter and two well beaten eggs. Add one teaspoon of soda dissolved in six tablespoons of milk, one teaspoon each of cinnamon and nutmeg and two cups of flour. Stir in other ingredients, drop on a tin a few inches apart and bake in a moderate oven.

Sugar Cookies.—Two cups sifted granulated sugar, two cups butter and one cup sour cream, three eggs (whites added last), one teaspoon soda in cream, six cups sifted flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one cup hickory-nut meats, vanilla. Will make five dozen cookies.

Beefsteak Roll.—Pound well the whole of a round steak. Make a dressing of one-half loaf of bread, two medium size grated onions, a little salt, pepper and mace. Moisten bread in milk, adding two beaten eggs. Spread this dressing over the steak, dotting here and there with bits of butter. Lap over the ends of steak, roll it tightly and tie with a cord. Put a little water in a bake pan and lay the steak over a dredge so that it will not touch the water. Bake for about one hour, basting frequently. The oven should be moderately hot. Make a thickening of flour and add to contents of pan for a gravy.

Medical Dilemma.

"What should one do," asks the young doctor, "when a patient comes in and diagnoses his own case exactly?"

"In such a situation," explains the experienced physician, "you must use your best judgment of human nature. If the patient is one kind of man he will appreciate your agreeing with his diagnosis as showing that he knows as much as you do; on the other hand, he may go about and say that you don't know any more than he does."—Chicago News.

The Doctor Calls It "Auto-intoxication"

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Letters may be addressed to Wm. A. BRADY, M. D., in care of the Gazette.

Women generally try to avoid growing stout, fat or over-weight, and unfortunately they have not a better way than to use a diet of pills and a share for that purpose. There is little in preaching anti-corset propaganda, however. This talk is for men. The women are welcome to listen if they are curious—they will anyway.

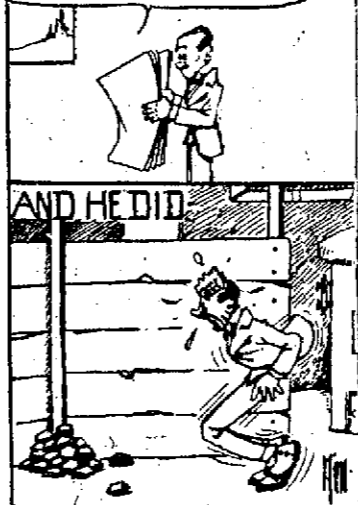

To nearly every man's life there comes a time when he begins to put on flesh. At first the poor fellow feels rather proud of it. To his own eye it looks like dignity, it feels like manhood, and he begins bragging the idea. But in due time he finds that it is nothing but grease, oil, fat filling in between the muscles. He realizes with a pang of remorse that it is merely a temporary gain, and advancing years that he is no longer a wiry youth, but only a flabby, short-winded, high-pitched, middle-aged man.

What he needs is a better balanced metabolism. His intake of food or fuel is more than his system is capable of burning up. The excess, in time, will poison him. If he has the courage and sense to realize this position and to take reasonable precautions before the auto-intoxication of middle age begins to harden his arteries, he may still preserve a fair imitation of youth, both in looks and in feelings.

Let him learn that a hearty appetite is to be curbed and restrained. That it is a fine thing to skip a meal or eat only half a portion, and to have a milk diet day occasionally.

And let him exercise. Walking is ideal. Tennis, golf, a certain amount of symposium work may be indulged in. If it is really pleasurable for him to utilize any of these aids to

MANY people in this section think that Ivory is a laundry soap. So it is, but that is not all. It is equally fine for the toilet and for the same reasons that it is fine in the laundry.

Because it is pure, because it is mild, because it lathers freely and rinses easily, Ivory Soap is unequalled for all laundry work.

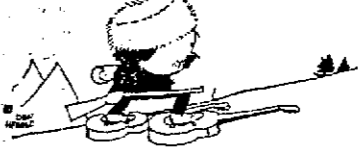

Are not these the qualities you desire in toilet soap? The fact is, you cannot get a better soap for the toilet than Ivory. Do not let its low price make you think otherwise.

A New Method of Baking Cakes

Mrs. Nevada Briggs, the baking expert, says:

"There is just one way to make your cakes rise high and evenly—give them time to rise before a crust is formed and the batter is stiffened by cooking."

"If using a gas, gasoline or oil stove, light your oven when you put the cake in and keep the flame low until the cake has doubled in bulk; then increase the heat until it is evenly browned and will respond to the pressure of the finger. If using a coal or wood range, leave the oven door open until the cake is in; then turn on the drafts and by the time the oven is at baking temperature, the cake will have raised sufficiently."

For rich, moist, feathery cakes Mrs. Briggs always recommends

K-G BAKING POWDER

It is double acting and sustains the raise. You can open and close the oven door, turn the tin around in the oven or do anything else necessary, without any danger of making the cake fall.

Try your favorite cake next time with K-G Baking Powder and see how much higher it will rise. Make it just as you always do, with the same quantity of baking powder. While K-G is less expensive than the old fashioned baking powders, it has even greater leavening strength and it is guaranteed pure and healthful.

The City of Numbered Days

By FRANCIS LYND

Lesington's long, plain-song face grew wooden. "You say 'practically certain.' The question is: Will they be rediscovered? Bet any of you a box of Poodles' Flor de near Havanas that it's some new kind of a flip-flop invented by J. Wesley and his boomers. What do you say?"

"Good Lord!" growled Handley. "They didn't need any new stunts. They had the world by the ear, as it was."

"That's all right," returned Lesington. "Maybe they didn't. I heard a thing or two over at Bongras' last night that set me guessing. There was a piece of gossip coming up the pike about the railroad pulling out of the game, or rather, that it had already pulled out."

Once more silence fell upon the group in the mapping room, and this time it was Grislow who broke it.

"I suppose Harlan is getting ready to exploit the now sensation right?" he suggested, and Anson nodded.

"You can trust Harlan for that. He's got the valley wire subsidized, and he is waiting for the first man to come in with the news of the sure thing and the location of it. When he gets the facts he'll touch off the fireworks, and the world will be invited to take a running jump for the new Tonopah."

"I wish to goodness Brouillard would turn up and get busy on his job. It's something hideous to be stranded this way in the thick of a storm!"

"It's time somebody was getting busy," snarled Handley. "There are a hundred tons of fresh concrete lying in the forms, just as they were dumped—with no puddlers—to say nothing of half as much freezing to solid rock right now in the mixers and on the telfers."

Grislow got up and reached for his coat and hat.

"I'm going out to hunt for the boss," he said, "and you fellows had better do the same. If this is one of Cortwright's flip-flops, and Brouillard happened to be in the way, I wouldn't put it beyond J. Wesley to work some kind of a disappearing racket on the human obstacle."

The suggestion was carried out immediately by the three to whom it was made, but for a reason of his own the hydrographer contrived to be the last to leave the mapping room. When he found himself alone he returned hastily to the desk and pulled out the drawer of portents, rummaging in it until he was fully convinced that the little buckskin bag of nuggets was gone. Then, instead of following the others, he took a fieldglass from its case on the wall and went to the south window to focus it upon the Massingale cabin, standing out clear-cut and distinct in the afternoon sunlight on its high, shelflike bench.

The powerful glass brought out two figures on the cabin porch, a woman and a man. The woman was standing and the man was sitting on the step. Grislow lowered the glass and slid the telescoping sun tubes home with a snap.

"Good God!" he mused, "it's unbelievable! He deliberately turns this thing loose on us down here and then takes an afternoon off to go and make love to a girl! He's crazy; it's the seven-year devil he talks about. And nobody can help him; nobody—unless Amy can. Lord, Lord!"

"Oh!" she gasped. "Are you sure? How can you be sure?"

"I've given the order," he said gravely, "an order they can't disregard. Let's go back a bit and I'll explain. Do you remember my telling you that your brother had tried to bribe me to use my influence with Mr. Ford?"

"As if I should ever be able to forget it!" she protested.

"Well, that wasn't all that he did—he threatened to turn the valley into a placer camp, to disorganize our working force, even stop or definitely postpone the building of the dam."

She was listening eagerly, but there was a nameless fear in the steadfast eyes—a shadow which he either missed or disregarded.

"And you—your beloved this?" she asked faintly.

"I was compelled to believe it. He let me pan out the proof for myself."

"It is dreadful—dreadful!" she murmured. "You believed him, and for that reason you used your influence with Mr. Ford?"

He got up and took her in his arms, and she suffered him.

"A few days ago, little girl, I couldn't have told you. But now I can. I am a free man—or I can be whenever I choose to say the word. I did it for love's sake."

She was pushing him away, and the great horror in her eyes was unmistakable now.

"Oh!" she panted, "is love a thing to be cheapened like that? And your freedom—how have you made a hundred thousand dollars in these few weeks? Oh, Victor, is it clean money?"

He was abashed, confounded; and at the bottom of the tangle of conflicting emotions there was a dull glow of resentment.

"I did it, as I say—for love of you, Amy; and now I have done a much more serious thing—for the same reason."

"Tell me," she said, with a quick catching of her breath.

"Your brother put a weapon in my hands, and I have used it. There was one sure way to make the railroad people get busy again. They couldn't sit still if all the world were trying to get to a new gold-camp, to which they already have a line graded and nearly ready for the steel."

"And you have—?"

He nodded.

She had retreated to take her former position, leaning against the porch post, with her hands behind her, and she had grown suddenly calm.

"Don't look at me that way, Amy," he pleaded. "You wanted something—and I wanted to give it to you. That was all—as God hears me, it was all. You believe that, Amy? It will break my heart if you don't believe it."

She shook her head sadly.

You don't understand, and I can't make you understand—that is the keen misery of it. If this ruthless thing you tried to do had succeeded, I should be the most wretched woman in the world."

"If it had succeeded? It has succeeded. Didn't I say just now that the town was crazy with excitement when I left to come up here?"

The girl was shaking her head again. "God sometimes saves us in spite of ourselves," she said gravely. "The excitement would die out. There are no placers in the Niquola. The bars have been prospected again and again."

CHAPTER XIII
Tumults and Dangers

Brouillard turned on his heel and choked back the sudden malediction that rose to his lips. She had called Mirapolis a city of knaves and dupes; surely, he himself was the simplest of the dupes.

"I was—after so long a time," he murmured.

and that if the railroad doesn't come he will lose everything."

Brouillard gave a low whistle. "I don't wonder that the quitting rumor made you nervous. But I think I can lift one of your burdens. What you heard in town this morning is a fact: the railroad people have stopped work on the Buckskin extension. Don't faint; they are going to begin again right away."

"Oh!" she gasped. "Are you sure? How can you be sure?"

"I've given the order," he said gravely, "an order they can't disregard. Let's go back a bit and I'll explain. Do you remember my telling you that your brother had tried to bribe me to use my influence with Mr. Ford?"

You don't understand, and I can't make you understand—that is the keen misery of it. If this ruthless thing you tried to do had succeeded, I should be the most wretched woman in the world."

"If it had succeeded? It has succeeded. Didn't I say just now that the town was crazy with excitement when I left to come up here?"

The girl was shaking her head again. "God sometimes saves us in spite of ourselves," she said gravely. "The excitement would die out. There are no placers in the Niquola. The bars have been prospected again and again."

Tumults and Dangers

Brouillard turned on his heel and choked back the sudden malediction that rose to his lips. She had called Mirapolis a city of knaves and dupes; surely, he himself was the simplest of the dupes.

"I was—after so long a time," he murmured.

MRS. SLACK'S LETTER
To Mothers of Delicate Children.

Palmyra, Pa.—"My little girl had a chronic cough and was so thin you could count her ribs and she had no appetite. Nothing we gave her seemed to help her, until one day Mrs. Nelbert asked me to try Vinol, and now she is hungry all the time, her cough is gone, she is stouter and has a more healthy color. I wish every mother who has a delicate child would try Vinol."—Mrs. Alfred Slack.

went on. "Your brother merely 'sailed' a few shovelfuls of sand for my especial benefit. Great heavens, but I was an easy mark!"

"Don't!" she cried, and the tears in her voice cut him to the heart—"don't make it harder for me than it has to be. I have told you only what I've heard my father say, time and again: that there is no gold in the Niquola river. And you mustn't ask me to despise my brother. He fights his way to his ends without caring much for the consequences to others; but tell me—haven't you been doing the same thing?"

"Yet you condemn in your brother what you condemn in me," he complained.

"My brother is my brother; and you are—let me tell you something, Victor: God helping me, I shall be no man's evil genius, and yours least of all. You broke down the barriers a few minutes ago and you know what is in my heart. But I can take it out of my heart if the man who put it there is not true to himself."

Brouillard was silent for a little space, and when he spoke again it was as one awaking from a troubled dream.

"I know. There is a change. I am not the same man I was a few years, or even a few months ago. I have lost something; I have not the same promptings; things that I used to loathe no longer shock me. And there is no cause. Nothing different has broken into my life save the best of all things—a great love. And you tell me that the love is unworthy."

Dinner Stories

A Bradford man who has in his employ an Irishman recently had occasion to engage a new cook, and it was the Celt's wife that was given the job.

One evening the head of the house said to the Irishman:

"Do you know, Pat, for a woman of her figure, your wife has remarkable poise?"

"Yes, sor," said Pat. "They're the best I ever tasted."

An anecdote illustrating the misplaced earnestness of a serious schoolboy was recently related by Weedon Grossmith. As a question in arithmetic, the school inspector who was visiting a school propounded the following: "If a cat fell into a bottomless pit and climbed up two feet for relief three times it fell, how long would it take to get out?" The majority of the scholars sat silent, with a puzzled air, but one boy set to work assiduously and began to cover his

Suffered The Agony Of a Dozen Deaths

Prominent Farmer in Canada Describes His Recovery and Escape from the Operating Table.

In a letter to friends at Saskatoon, Mr. F. Gifford, of the Ball Rock Farm, Maymont, Saskatchewan, Canada, says: "Thanks to Fruitola and Traxo I am alive. I lay on my back for sixteen days, suffering the agonies of a dozen deaths. I began taking Fruitola and was relieved of a great many gallstones. My health is now fully restored."

Fruitola possesses properties that act directly upon the intestinal parts. It is a great system cleanser, softening the congested waste and disintegrating the hardened particles that cause so much suffering, and quickly expels the accumulation to the great relief of the patient. Traxo is a tonic-cathartic that acts on the liver and kidneys, stimulates the flow of gastric juices to aid digestion and removes bile from the general circulation. It serves to build up and strengthen the weakened, run-down system.

Fruitola and Traxo are prepared in the Pinus laboratories at Monticello, Ill., and arrangements have been made to supply them through representative druggists. In Janesville they can be obtained at J. P. Baker, 123 W. Milwaukee St.

late with calculations. The inspector noticed this, and at length said: "Here! Stop doing that! Haven't you the sense to see that the cat couldn't possibly get out?"

"Oh, yes, he could, sir," replied the boy brightly. "If you'll only give me time I'll bring him out in Australia!"

The afternoon at the new neighbor's had passed very pleasantly. James Jr., cried when told that it was time to go home.

"Never mind," said the lady consolingly. "You can come again."

It ain't that, said James Jr., "it's the wallowing I am going to get from Henry. When I get home he'll say 'Halves,' and if I have to tell him that you didn't give me anything he will think I'm telling a story and punch my head for it."

Cocoon Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harsh. Just plain mulished cocoon oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulished cocoon oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

He Removed the Danger Signal

Frank W. Sherman, Laconia, N. H., writes: "I suffered with kidney trouble, had a tired feeling in my back, did not have any ambition and felt all tired out. I used Foley Kidney Pills and in a few days began to feel better, and now I have entirely recovered and have had no return of my painful symptoms."

One cannot help becoming nervous and feeling all the time as if the kidneys fail to filter and throw out of the system the poisonous waste matter that causes kidney troubles and bladder ailments.

Backache is one of Nature's danger signals. If the kidneys are clogged up and inactive, it is often followed by rheumatism, annoying bladder or urinary disorders, purty swellings under the eyes, swollen ankles and painful joints.

Foley Kidney Pills get right at the source of trouble. They invigorate the kidneys to healthy action and when the kidneys properly perform their functions the poisonous waste matter is eliminated from the system.

LEARN HOW TO SWIM

In a Series of Ten Articles Famous Expert
Louis De B. Handley of the N. Y. A. C.
Gives Advice to Beginners and Veterans.

Article No. 3.—The Crawl Stroke

By LOUIS DE B. HANDLEY.
(Copyright, 1915, by American Press Association.)

SOME ten years ago the crawl swimming stroke came from Australia to revolutionize the art of natation in this country, and it is interesting to recall that, though we unwittingly departed at the very first from the original type, we undoubtedly owe to this unconscious change our present international supremacy in sprint swimming.

In fact, the only data we had at the start upon the new stroke were hazy descriptions written for the Australian newspapers by men not versed in the subject, and it was simply blind luck which enabled us in attempting the reconstruction of the crawl from these descriptions to stumble without knowing it upon a somewhat different leg drive superior to that used across the seas.

The advantage derived from the change will be realized. In using the old kick it was necessary either to let the legs drag idly and lose momentum between arm drives or so speed up the movements of both arms and legs as to make the stroke exhausting and untenable.

With the continuous thrash instead the swimmer is able to make the arm movements as slow as he pleases and still utilize all the power in his legs by increasing the number of beats at will. The prevalent belief that there is no co-ordination between the arm and leg movements of the American crawl, however, is unwarranted. True, our best coaches tell their pupils not to pay any attention to relative timing, but this is because they know that as a swimmer against proficiency he falls naturally and unconsciously into the rhythmic action made essential by the correlation of the muscular system.

TWO VIEWS OF THE CRAWL AND THE TRUDGEN.

Lower illustration shows position of the body in the crawl and the trudgen crawl seen from above. Right arm is pushing to full reach; left arm near completion of its drive; legs performing up and down alternate thrash.

Upper illustration shows swimmer completing the top arm drive. Top arm is relaxed and ready to leave the water, underarm is about to catch, head is twisted (not lifted) to inhale, and legs are crossing in alternate thrash.

In the decade since elapsed many varieties of the crawl have appeared. Its American devotees showed such immediate and remarkable increase of speed that both competitors and instructors began to devote to it close study, and presently new theories were evolved and various innovations introduced. Then we heard in turn of the Australian true type, the legless, the amble, the composite, the American and the trudgen crawl.

Experiments, however, eventually led to the conclusion that most of these variations were practically worthless, and today only the American and trudgen crawl have survived, at least in the United States. The former is universally recognized as the best for short distance swimming and has the world's sprinting records to its credit. The latter is generally advocated for the longer courses and has been used effectively even in water, Marathon races.

In this article we will confine ourselves to the American crawl and speak separately later of the trudgen crawl. A great many swimmers, and not a few racing men among them, believe that in using the crawl a shorter arm drive than in the trudgen should be sought and more rapid action. This is hardly the case, and the belief probably comes from the fact that the stroke has been the standard one for sprinting, while the trudgen is shown at present chiefly by distance swimmers.

But even in sprinting it is not advisable to cut the reach and flay the water wildly. Indeed, the world's greatest 100 yarders—Charles Daniels, M. J. Kahanamoku, Arthur Raitbel, M. J. Hebbel and Perry McGillicray—always take full, complete strokes, and their action is comparatively very slow.

The leading authorities on swimming are now unanimous in stating that the identical arm movements should feature all the modern strokes—trudgen, crawl and trudgen-crawl—and as these were given space in a previous article on the trudgen we will pass on without further ado to the leg drive of the crawl.

This drive is a continuous, alternate up and down thrash of narrow scope, performed entirely under water. The legs are held outstretched, but not rigid, and, though the thighs move a little, the bulk of the work is done from the knees down. Walk on tiptoe, with mincing steps, and you will obtain a clear idea of the wanted action. The original Australian kick was made by lifting the feet high above water and beating them down just close to every arm stroke, each strike the surface in time with the pull of the opposite arm. Our experts, however, realized that waving the feet in the air added nothing to the propelling force, yet increased the effort and caused the lower body to sink. They agreed, therefore, a submerged thrash, the heels at most, to show over the water, and the Australians themselves have now become convinced of the superiority of the method.

As to the number of downward beats, it was here that we branched off from the original strokes from the very first. Not knowing of the synchronous timing of arms and legs, we let the individual decide for himself how many beats he could perform to each drive of the two arms and thereby discovered what is now called the American crawl.

thrash is either by stretching out on the water and hanging on to something or assuming the same position after donning floating device and hold the arms motionless. It is well at first not to bend the knees at all, working the legs from the hips, as the natural inclination of a breast stroker is to draw up the legs, instead of whipping them up and down.

Only after a correct leg drive has been developed should the arms be brought into play.

INTRODUCTION OF TANLAC IN JANESVILLE BEGINS TODAY

"Tanlac Man" on Hand Early to Meet Crowds and Personally Explain "Master Medicine."

The formal introduction of Tanlac in Janesville begins today. J. A. Copp, known here as the "Tanlac Man" will be on hand at the Smith's Drug Co., 14 West Milwaukee street, where he will courteously meet the public and answer all questions concerning the "Master Medicine." It is expected that a large crowd will have heard of the famous medicine and who are anxious to better their health will visit the store today. Mr. Copp wishes to personally talk with all who are in the least interested in Tanlac.

While discussing the opening, Mr. Copp yesterday, had the following to say:

"There is not a doubt in my mind but that Tanlac will prove every whit as popular here as it has elsewhere. Tanlac is already well known here because, although it has never been sold in this state, its fame has drifted in from other places. Tanlac is a household word in scores of states where it is doing its good work. I do not think that Janesville will prove any exception to the rule.

"Tanlac, while a new preparation, comes with a reputation of real merit. Leading druggists in the cities where it is on sale, state that the demand for the medicine is unprecedented.

"The Taylor-Leaves Drug Co., of Louisville, Kentucky, recently sold 50,000 bottles of Tanlac within a period of 90 days. Dow's Stores, of Cincinnati, are also selling an enormous quantity. Thousands of bottles of the remedy have been sold in Michigan where Tanlac is proving the most popular thing of its kind ever introduced in that state. When one considers that the demand is confined to one preparation, such sales must be due to but one thing—merit."

CHAPTER 48.

The erroneous idea of the modern dietitian concerning the importance of "Calories" and "Balanced Rations" are not only at work undermining the health of men, women and children, but they are also disastrously affecting the dairy industry, which reacts upon the quality of milk and meat that now come to market.

In New York City, Armour & Co. have had to discontinue the killing of dairy cows because of the tremendous losses sustained through the excessive number of condemnations resulting from a generalized tuberculosis. Even while the cows are waiting slaughter, these condemnations are being made, showing that they had been producing right up to the day of slaughter.

In one certified dairy herd in New York State 124 of 125 cows were found in a state of malnutrition clearly indicative of the unfitness of their food. The daily dietary of these cows consisted of:

Ten pounds beet pulp (the exhausted residue of the beet sugar industry).

Ten pounds alfalfa (good food).

Two to ten pounds degerminated cornmeal and brewer's grain (brewer's grain is the exhausted refuse resulting from the production of beer).

To this mixture was added from one-half to one pint of oil meal or gluten meal. Oil meal is the residue of the process employed in the production of cotton seed oil. Gluten feed is the residue of the process employed in the production of glucose.

Many of these cattle foods, as referred to by Funk, correspond to the polished rice, pearly barley, degerminated cornmeal, patent flour, and other nutrient-producing food of the refined type consumed by men, women and children.

They are impoverished foods, yet they appear on the formula of the certified dairy by reason of the fact that they satisfy the modern dietitian's erroneous idea of the proper percentage of carbohydrates, proteins, fats, and calories necessary to form a "balanced ration." They are so labeled.

The certified dairy conscientiously followed the scientific analysis printed on the sacks in which the dedicated cattle food is sold.

November 15, 1912, all of the cows in the dairy herd referred to here were tuberculin tested. Two were found to react to the test and were withdrawn from the herd in order that they might not spread the disease to the others.

On May 20, 1913, the herd, having been on the "scientific calorie diet" for nearly one year produced fifteen reactors. The condition was beginning to alarm the owners of the cows.

In the mean time the stable superintendent had placed his delivery horses on the impoverished cow food. He was anxious to make a record for himself and, as the cow food was cheaper than the horse food, he made the change. Between the fifty-sixth and seventieth days the horses on the diseased food began to show the same symptoms of acidosis, emaciation, and anemia which were characteristic of the cows.

The horses were at once put back on whole grains and grasses, whereupon they promptly recovered. The cows were continued on the same rationed diet until a veterinarian, noting the experience of the stable superintendent with his horses, declared that the condition of the cows, favorable to the rapid development of tuberculosis, was directly due to the character of the food consumed by them. He immediately ordered a change notwithstanding the high caloric value and the scientific proportion of carbohydrates, proteins, and fats with which the certified milk producers were being nourished.

A contest to this episode, concerning which more will be said later, regarding the disastrous results of the use of demineralized food on milk-producing cows, is to be found in the experience of David T. Arrell, Youngstown, Ohio, breeder of thoroughbred American trotting horses.

Arrell has bred, broke, trained, and developed prize-winners on four soils—good, pasture, shade, and stable. He so keenly recognized the fact that the quality of his horses, their health, vitality, endurance, resistance to disease and general physical perfection depended upon their food that he went so far as to provide No. 1 unbleached oats for which he paid, prior to the outbreak of the war, $1 a bushel, laid down in Youngstown.

As a practical horse-breeder he had noticed that his animals fed on unprocessed or non-by-product foods remained practically immune to all the equine diseases with which the average horse-breeder is troubled. As against this observation concerning the vitality of the horse, properly fed, officials of the Bureau of Animal Industry estimate that from 85 to 90 per cent of all the milk-producing herds in the United States are affected with tuberculosis. All of these herds are fed more or less on exhausted or refined foods.

These diseases of disturbed metabolism, not only with respect to cows and horses, but also with respect to the human being, are as prevalent as the deaths of nearly 400,000 children under ten years of age in the United States every year might indicate.

Lovelace reports 936 cases of peripheral neuritis in a railroad hospital in North Brazil.

Heizer, Fraser, Aaron, Higet, and others, as we have seen, have demonstrated the insufficiency of demineralized foods of high caloric value in the Cullen Leper Colony, the Straits Settlements, and Bilibid Prison.

Caspari and Moszkowski report practical experiences in New Guinea and Berlin which caused them to conclude that human neuritis is a widespread disease of disturbed metabolism caused principally by refined carbohydrate foods, the high caloric value of which is not disputed. Human neuritis is one of the many symptoms of acidosis.

In probing into the evils responsible for the death of 1,500,000 children under ten years of age in the United States during the past four years and in the rapid increase of organic heart disease, cancer, Bright's disease, diabetes, hardening of the arteries, and other rapidly increasing disorders of adult life are we to dismiss or confront the foodless foods of high caloric value now so popular among the American people and their milch cows?

It should always be remembered that in cases of disease brought about through fatty indigestion, butter milk made of skim milk is better than the bottled fermented milks containing the cream of the whole milk. No preservatives are used in these bottled fermented milks.

R. L. J.—How can I tell whether the maple syrup served with pancakes in the restaurants and hotels is pure? A. You can't tell. There is no law in the United States that compels the restaurant to give you any information on this subject. Most of the pancake syrup served in restaurants consists of 85 per cent cane syrup and 15 per cent maple. Some day the restaurants that serve the pure article will print the plain statement on their menu cards. When they do the days of honest labeling of foodstuffs will have arrived and the consumer will be able to judge the difference between the pure and the compound.

H. F.—Do you recommend George Washington Coffee?

A. George Washington Coffee is like any other coffee except that it is free of the instantaneous variety and requires little or no preparation in getting it ready for the cup. It contains no substances that are not found in any other coffee, for which reason it is more objectionable than any other coffee. If you agree with you the George Washington Coffee is as good as any kind. My advice is never to give any coffee to a child.

It's the New Plan. Simple. Sure as Fate. Applied in a Few Seconds.

"Why, John, I never knew you to use such language." I've told you several times it's no use to try those badgering, salves, tapes, plasters, and contraptions for corns.

Here's some "Gets-It," it's just wonderful how easy, "clear and clean" it makes any corn come right off "Pokes" but a few seconds to apply. It dries at once, and your sock on right over it, there's nothing to stick or roll up, form a bundle of your toe or press on it, it's so painless, simple as rolling off a log. Now put away those knives, razors and scissors, use "Gets-It" and you'll have a sweet disposition and no more corns and calluses.

"Gets-It" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill. Sold to Janesville and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by Red Cross Pharmacy and McCue & Buss.

Wilson—Did you see how pleased Mrs. Brown was when I told her she didn't look any older than her daughter?

Barnes—No, I was looking at the expression on her daughter's face!

Orfordville News

Orfordville, April 20.—Paul and Ingolf Kvale and Merwin Tollerud who are attending college at Decatur, Iowa, are spending their Easter vacation at home; they arrived on Wednesday.

Mrs. H. N. Wagley and Mrs. M. O. Rime and daughters, Cora and Gladys, were among those who went to Janesville on Thursday.

Chas. Naugle has sold his residence in the village to Jessie Honeysett of Janesville, Mr. and Mrs. Honeysett intend to take immediate possession and make Orfordville their future home.

Mrs. Warren Taylor died at her home in the village on Wednesday evening in the ninety-first year of her age. Mrs. Taylor was one of the pioneer citizens of this section of the state, having come here more than half a century ago, and settled in the town of Spring Valley. The original homestead was her home until she moved to the village several years ago. She is survived by five sons, Elijah of Janesville, Milton of Minneapolis, and Newton, William and Burton of Orfordville, and three daughters, Mrs. Emmet Ward of Cameron, Wis., and Mrs. J. F. Dickey and Miss Ida of Orfordville.

Mrs. Peter Gilbert died at her home in the town of Spring Valley on Wednesday afternoon. She had been in poor health for some time and about a week ago pneumonia developed and owing to her advanced years medical treatment seemed of no avail. She had been a resident of the township for many years.

The Planet Mars

Earth's astronomers know nothing of Mars beyond the fact that if the planet is of a formation more recent than the formation of the terrestrial globe its evolutions must have been more rapid, because it is so small. Mars is an older world than the earth—a world that represents the intermediate state between that of the earth and that of the moon. The phenomena on Mars now under the observation of earth's astronomers are the last manifestations of a dying life. Slowly, very slowly, time is doing its work. Mars is dying of cold, the anesthetic that benumbs the worlds and steeps them in the sleep in which they die.—Exchange.

JOURNALISM ASSOCIATION AT KANSAS CONVENTION.

Lawrence, Kan., April 21.—The American Association of Journalism Teachers in annual convention at the University of Kansas today and tomorrow will make a comprehensive survey of the whole subject of journalism teaching.

The proceedings will be published in full and distributed among publishers and educators.

The subject matter of journalism will be grouped under eleven divisions, news, its handling and treatment, editorial, material and methods, editorial direction, ethics, administration, business systems, records, cost-finding, advertising, circulation, history and philosophy of journalism, cartooning, illustrating, printing, engraving, specialized journalism, agricultural, etc., the magazine field.

President Thorpe says: "It seems time for teachers of journalism to take stock. Many of us have been pioneering for nearly ten years. We have encouraged journalism conference, short courses for editors, district and state meetings, we have furnished model records, cost blanks, instructions to country correspondents, hints on news handling, circulation building, community service, advertising, management; we have exchanged new type for the country editor's worn-out product to better his typography; we have sent men directly into the offices with cost-systems and efficiency methods.

"Are we on the right track?" "Should we encourage this service idea?"

"Will it get away from us?" "At the University of Kansas it has grown to such an extent that the department of journalism receives two hundred letters a month from editors asking for information and advice."

"There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS ON RAISING CALVES

Hints That May Aid Rock County Boys Who Are Interested in the Calf Growing Contest.

An article written by J. C. Robertson, well known feeder and breeder of baby beef specialists for the Wisconsin Live Stock Breeders' association, will give many valuable suggestions to boys of Rock county who are entered in the calf raising contest which is being conducted by the Rock county breeders and which will be concluded during the week of the Janesville fair. Among other things, Mr. Robertson says:

"Definite rules for feeding baby calves cannot be given as every successful feeder has a different method. But we will try to give you the general plan which most of these men follow and you can make changes to fit your conditions. However, there is one rule upon which all feeders are agreed. That is 'do not lose the calf' and it means that you must keep the calf coming all the time, especially during the weaning period. This is the most important time in the life of a baby beef."

"Most of you will be feeding a fall calf and the following plan will possibly be of aid to you."

"Fall calves usually come in September or October. Most feeders say that milk is necessary for profitable baby beef production and so they let the calves suckle their mothers or turn them to their mothers twice a day. Allow them to eat grain as soon as they will take it. Keep the cows away while they are eating; build a 'creep' for the calves or turn them in a separate lot. Corn and oats mixed half and half by measure, will make a good mixture to start them on. Gradually increase the corn and decrease the oats until at the end of eight or nine weeks they are getting no oats at all. Add a little oil meal as you take out the oats until, when they are on full feed, they are getting twenty pounds of oil meal to every hundred pounds of corn. A small amount of bran with this mixture, say ten pounds, improves it to any notion. Cotton seed meal can be substituted for oil meal, although many feeders say oil meal is better while the calves are nursing. Give them plenty of good clover, alfalfa or mixed hay. When weaning time comes they will scarcely notice that the milk supply has stopped. I would keep fall calves off pasture entirely, feeding them in a darkened shed or stall. Of course they will want some exercise, but not much. A little corn silage, if you have it, or green corn will be relished by them. They should be on full feed by July or August and should be eating about two pounds of corn for every hundred pounds of live weight. They should weigh from 400 to 600 pounds at the start. When the calves are twelve to fourteen months old, they should be in prime condition and ready for the Christmas market, which is usually the highest of the year for cattle of quality and finish."

"Spring calves dropped in March and April are usually finished by the May and June markets which are generally good, since few prime cattle are for sale at this time. Most men allow the calves to run with their dams on grass, nursing until the cows are dry. Others keep the calves in a well-bedded, darkened stable, allowing them to suck night and morning, thus avoiding much trouble. During December and January they should be on full feed, so as to get to market during May and June."

"If there are any questions about any part of this article, send them to the Wisconsin Live Stock Breeders' association, Madison. We will answer them as soon as possible by a personal letter."

King Alfred's Bugle.

The most interesting of all bugles is the famous "blowing stone," first used by Alfred, the Great, to signal his troops on the field of Ashdown. It is in the historic Vale of the White Horse, in Berkshire, England, and is a mass of sandstone so curiously pierced with holes that when blown it emits a loud, clear call. The sound travels over the green meadows, through the woods of the river Ock, echoing among the White Horse hills and down to King Alfred's camp on the southern slope and back to Wayland Smith's cave, where the smith lived, whom no one ever saw, who shod the travelers' horses left at his door.—London Spectator.

The Word "Mizpah."

The word "Mizpah" is the name of several places in Palestine. The one with which its connection is best known, however, is the heap of stones and the pillar set up by Jacob and his brethren as a witness of the covenant between Jacob and Laban. The heap of stones were a boundary and also an altar. The use of the word "Mizpah" as an inscription for memorial stones is based on words occurring in connection with the setting up of the stones by Jacob and his brethren, the covenant with Laban—"The Lord watch between me and thee while we are absent one from the other."—New York Times.

A Troublesome Creditor.

The poet, Clement Marot, being in very straitened circumstances, went to the king and said, "I have come to lay before your majesty a complaint against one of my creditors whose claims I have satisfied over and over again, and yet he persists in dunning and harassing me every day."

"Who is the scoundrel?" the king inquired.

"My stomach, sire. Though I have satisfied his wants time without number, it never ceases to torment, and I am utterly incapable of meeting its demands."

The king was pleased with the joke and allowed the poet a pension on the spot.

An Inspiration.

Lienel was at a matinee with his father, and when a trapeze acrobat failed to catch the object at which he flew through the air and fell sprawling into the net the boy was greatly excited.

"They are never hurt," explained his father. "It is a regular trick to make such a miss once or twice to give the audience an idea of the difficulty of the feat and thereby intensify the applause when it has been successfully performed."

Lienel thought a moment and then, with a bright smile, said: "Papa, do you think I could make a hit with my teacher by following this circus stunt and missing my lessons once in awhile?"—Puck.

WHERE REASON RULES

By HOPE AINSLIE.

"It's just this way, Uncle Ted. There's a girl up home, Betty Roberts, and we used to be rather sweet on each other. We both went to the same church and the academy, and I suppose I did write letters to her, and so on when I was seventeen or around there. Mother likes her and she's always said I'd marry Betty. Last year I went after that concession and met Mrs. Leonard. She loaned her collection of Chinese porcelains to the exhibit and I gave you my word, Uncle Ted, from the instant we looked at each other I didn't give a rap whether I ever saw Betty or any other woman as long as I lived."

"Good looking, Jack?"

"She's just divine," Jack spoke fervently, reverently. "She's been a widow for four years; married at nineteen to a brute."

"All good-looking widows' husbands were brutes," murmured the major. "Go on."

"That's all. I told her I loved her and she was giving me at least a chance until mother came out to Erie and quivered the whole thing. She met Mrs. Leonard at Aunt Anna's, and told her I was an impressionable boy, a perfect slave to sympathy and all that rot, always used to being petted, etc. Finally showed her Betty's picture as the little girl sweetheart back East waiting for me to get through my travels. You know the way she can put a thing over with that tone of her voice and her eyes. Well, I didn't have a chance after she had left. Dolores left for Santa Barbara the next day."

"Humph," mused the major. "Now she comes here. Did she know you were with me at the Springs?"

"No, sir. We haven't written."

"Well, I don't blame you, mind, Jackie. She's a wonderfully attractive woman. And you're twenty-six, you know, old enough to toddle without the maternal apron strings. I should say, Lucia is a fine woman, good sister to me, but still—what's this Betty like?"

"Oh, she's all right," said Jack vaguely.

"There goes the widow," said the major, suddenly leaning forward. "Gad, she can ride!"

Jack vaulted the veranda rail and made for the mounting stone to meet the chestnut mare as she galloped up the shore road. His voice was a bit husky when he spoke to Mrs. Leonard, slim and erect in her black habit, her hair wind-blown around her face, her eyes dark and evasive as he leaned toward her.

"Don't go in yet," he begged as the boy took the bridle. "I must speak to you. You've avoided me ever since you found I was here. Dolores?"

"Hush, Jack. Someone will hear you, you foolish boy."

"Don't call me a boy," he swung back miserably. "I'm not. Come along the pine road just a little way. You wouldn't speak to me hardly at lunch. I know you were sorry even to see me here."

"Oh, no, I was not. It was a pleasant surprise, really it was, Jack."

"A pleasant surprise. It made me perfectly mad to see you again."

"The train service to Santa Barbara is quite regular," she said demurely.

"You wouldn't have seen me. You left without a word. You believed every last thing mother told you about me and Betty."

"Did I?"

"You cared, didn't you? Even though you went away. Never mind Betty. I haven't thought of anyone in the world but you for the last six months. Uncle Ted took me under his wing and brought me South because I wasn't fit for anything else."

She smiled, leaning forward as he crushed her hands in his, and quoted softly under her breath—

"I had not dreamt that love would stay. Yet here he lingers many a day."

"Don't go away from me again, Dolores. I swear I'll follow you this time to the ends of the world."

She laughed, her eyes brimful of tenderness.

"Oh, Jack, Jack, why didn't you follow me then if you really cared."

The major came leisurely toward them, the late afternoon mail in his hands.

"By George, Jack boy, here's news. Good afternoon, Mrs. Leonard. Betty Roberts eloped with Batcheller Phillips Saturday."

"I know Betty," said Dolores gently. "We are distant cousins, but she writes to me."

"Yes? Writes to Jack, too, I should say. Here's one with a return line on it, Mrs. Batcheller Phillips, Washington, D. C., Hotel Grosvenor. Break the news to us, Jackie."

Jack opened the letter with a frown, and then smiled. He handed it to Dolores. It was typically Betty.

Dear Jack: I know what everybody'll say, and don't care. I've always liked Betty and I'd like to know why I can't marry him if I want to. So we're eloping. I'm just as sick and tired as you are of forever being hurried at your head. I've written Dolores—she's my cousin. I wish you all kinds of luck. Happily, BETTY.

Jack's shoulders unconsciously straightened. He turned resolutely to the major.

"Uncle, Ted, I'd like to have you know it first that Dolores and I are engaged," he said. "God bless Betty."

WIPING OUT LIQUOR IN PARTS OF CANADA

Prohibition Sweeping Over Provinces in Dominion Through Rigid Measures.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Winnipeg, Can., April 21.—A movement is under way among liquor dealers in Manitoba, which voted out its saloons at an election last month, to petition the government for two months of grace in order to dispose of stock on hand. Should the petition meet with favor, the province will go "dry" until August 1.

We have been with you for two score years, and another 60 days will matter little, is the plea of the liquor dealers.

On the other hand, the prohibition leaders hotly protest against any extension of time. They point to the fact that more than three fourths of Canadian territory already has voted out saloons and confidently predict that before the new year Quebec alone among the provinces will retain the liquor licensing system and that even Quebec will be restricted to Montreal, Quebec and a number of large urban centers.

The possibility of the Dominion government passing rigid prohibition measures has made large liquor dealers in Quebec as well as in other sections uneasy, it is said. Several measures pertaining principally to the shipment of spirits from wet to dry territory now are before parliament.

On September 15, Ontario, for years considered the stronghold of the Canadian liquor interests, will go dry direct legislation, which will continue effective until after the war. Licenses will be extended from May 1 until September upon payment of a nominal fee. After the war, and a considerable time after the return of the soldiers, a referendum will be taken. In the meantime, the law will not interfere with importation of liquor for private consumption, but will provide extremely heavy fines for violations of the regulations stipulated.

The three hundred and twenty licenses in Alberta province will be cancelled July 1, next and the sale of liquor henceforth prohibited.

Saskatchewan province now has one of the most stringent curtailment laws, all liquor traffic being controlled by the provincial government. No person may use liquor except in his own home.

Nova Scotia entered the prohibition ranks March 15, 1916, by a legislative vote.

In New Brunswick, nine of the fourteen counties are dry.

A local option law in Quebec, passed before confederation and which now covers about 800 parishes or approximately two thirds of the province, is in effect. Except in large cities there are practically no licensed bars.

Total prohibition has been adopted by Newfoundland, the island colony, abolishing sale, manufacture, importation and transportation of liquor.

In the northwest territories the sale of liquor is regulated by the Dominion license law.

Early in the summer railroads are expected to discontinue sale of liquor on dining cars because of the great stretch of dry territory in the west.

Manager Wild Conroy of the Elmira New York State league team gave the fans a big laugh when he announced that he had signed up a Burd, a Wurm, and a Bottle. Burd is a giant catcher who played good ball with the Richmond and Jersey City International last year, after a season in the Carolina league. Wurm is a pitcher who starred for the White Autos of Cleveland, and Bottle is a clever semi-professional.

COMMON AMERICAN BIRDS

INTERESTING INFORMATION ABOUT THEM
SUPPLIED BY THE BUREAU OF BIOLOGICAL
SURVEY OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

MOCKING BIRD

(Mimus polyglottus)

Length, ten inches. Most easily distinguished from the similarly colored loggerhead shrike by the absence of a conspicuous black stripe through the eye.

Range: Resident from southern Mexico north to California, Wyoming, Iowa, Ohio and Maryland; casual farther north.

Habits and economic status: Because of its incomparable medleys and imitative powers, the mockingbird is the most renowned singer of the western hemisphere. Even in confinement it is a masterly performer, and formerly thousands were trapped and sold for cage birds, but this reprehensible practice has been largely stopped by protective laws. It is not surprising, therefore, that the mockingbird should receive protection principally because of its ability as a songster and its preference for the vicinity of dwellings. Its place in the affections of the South is similar to that occupied by the robin in the North. It is well that this is true, for the bird appears not to earn protection from a strictly economic standpoint. About half of its diet consists of fruit, and many cultivated varieties are attacked, such as oranges, grapes, figs, strawberries, blackberries, and raspberries. Somewhat less than a fourth of the food is animal matter, and grasshoppers are the largest single element. The bird is fond of cotton worms, and is known to feed also on the chinch bug, rice weevil, and bollworm. It is unfortunate that it does not feed on injurious insects to an extent sufficient to offset its depredations on fruit.

FRESHIES REFUSE TO WEAR GREEN CAPS?

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Madison, Wis., April 21.—Freshmen at the university are defying the sophomores that the spring vacation is over, and are refusing to wear the green cap. Early after the holidays President Van Hise issued a statement that the yearlings could discard their emblems this spring, saying also that probably by another year the tradition would be crossed from the sophomores' book of traditions.

As the result of the action in favor of the first year students, the sophomores are up in arms and threaten to start a strenuous campaign and war to revive the old custom at Wisconsin. In the Daily Cardinal today appeared an extensive list of freshmen violators of the cap tradition. At the same time a warning has been issued against all fresh to purchase caps or suffer the consequences of a lake party or punishment by the student court.

FIVE TELEPHONE CASES DECIDED BY COMMISSION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Madison, Wis., April 21.—Disposition was made of five telephone cases by the Wisconsin railroad commission last night. Authority to increase its rate from $8 to $9 per year was granted to the Wisconsin Telephone company, operating an exchange at Osseo. The commission found that the present rate of $8 per year was not sufficient to keep the lines of the company in repair.

A change in rates was also authorized to the Foely Pike Lake Telephone company, which operates a single full metallic line approximately 20 miles long, connecting the Foely Pike Lake resort with lines of the Wisconsin Telephone company and the Wisconsin Telephone company at Elfield. During the past year this company has changed from a grounded to a full metallic line at great expense. The commission authorizes a rate of $2.50 per month for public and private summer hotels, resorts and cottages. The rate for rural subscribers shall be $2.00 per month and non-subscribers will be charged 15 cents for a call.

An increase in rates was authorized for the Baldwin Hills Telephone company, which operates a rural telephone system between Wausau and Waupun. Heretofore these subscribers have been charged $1 a month or $12 a year for service in these two cities. It required one-half of the money collected to pay the Wausau-Waupun Telephone company and the Wisconsin Telephone company to perform switching services. There the service to the two cities is to be maintained, a rate of $15 a year is authorized.

Slight changes are made in the switching arrangements between the Hawkins Telephone company, the Westford Telephone company, and the Badger Telephone company, as they apply to the Hub City switch. These changes affect mainly the times for the settlement of accounts.

The application of the Watertown Telephone company for an increase of rates was dismissed.

A RISE IN UMBRELLAS.

A REGULAR GARDEN FOR EASTER BONNETS

Aesthetic, Flopping Yet Fascinating,
Coolie Hats for Aesthetic Mabel.
(By Margaret Mason.)

To have all things harmonious
As much as she was able,
In home and dress and everything.
Essayed athletic Mabel.

And so they'd be in rhythm with
Her nifty garden smocks,
The sole blooms in her garden
Stocks, hollyhocks and phlox.

New York, April 21.—When you stand in the midst of your garden, whether it be a sunken Italian one or a raised window box, do you want to look the fairest flower of the lot?

If you do, it's very simple, Maud. All you need is a smock of becoming hue, a wide floppy straw hat and one of those fascinating garden baskets raised on a long wicker stick.

All your sinners, gladiolas, begonias and cannas will simply droop their heads in the face of such a ravishing combination.

Surely Maud Muller must have been thus attired when her fingered a bit ere he rode by. Most any good judge nowadays would do the same.

Beginning at the top the crowning glory of the garden outfit is the hat; and its only essentials are that it is big, floppy and becoming.

Those of the chair cane seat weave are smart, bound in a color to match your smock, with a twist of the same around the crown. Peanut straws, leghorns, panamas and loose grass woven hats are all lovely; and wide brimmed ones covered in flowered cretonne or awning stripes to match your skirt also are good.

If you want to go in for Oriental gardening the artistic Coolie hats are perfect, but if you top yourself off thus you will have to taboo the smock and awning stripe skirt for garments modeled after a Chinese woman's coat and skirt. Otherwise your outfit would not be in perfect accord according to aesthetic Mabel. These Chinese effects really are the very newest spring crop of gardening gear and most original.

The awning stripe skirts this season are not only the broad stripes of a bright color alternating with white, stripes had last year, but reveal in a riotous array of colored stripes in four or five hectic hues, like a Bakst ballet. They are all very short and full and button down the front with either side or puffy pouched ones set in.

The artistic willow baskets set on the long sticks in either natural coloring or may be stained to suit. They contain of course the most fascinating collection of gardening tools; a trowel whose handle is gay with paint, a pair of shears and your garden gloves.

Adorable watering pots blooming with hand painted neoclassics, and rakes with well-decorated handles are a few indispensable accessories of the fashionable garden.

Oh yes, and there are quaint and practical garden aprons too, the best model of which are the newest, is of striped material bound in a plain color with a bib and straps over the shoulders.

It is long so that you may stoop in the wet grass without dampening your skirt or your arbor and yet at will it buttons up to a desirable shortness and by this act turns itself into a capacious pocket.

So open your garden gate, besmoke yourself all up to date, and seeds of love will quickly grow in hearts of all who see you so—and so.

Dr. Syntax.

On the English coast, at Land's End, there stands a curiously formed bowlder with a profile resembling that of a human face. It is supposed that once the rocky head was held proudly erect and could look out over the blue sea, but during some period of disturbance the huge bowlder was thrown forward, so that now the forehead of the man rests against a neighboring rock. All these rugged and massive pieces bordering the coast are fine granite. Locally the curious bowlder is known as Dr. Syntax.

Many were greatly surprised to hear of the wedding of Mr. Ainaloe Moots, as he was supposed to be doing so well. You have to be mighty careful what you say in these days of rubber heels.

YALE NOW HAS REAL STAFF OF COACHES

Player Coaches Will Be Employed to Revive Football at Yale This Fall.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, April 21.—Final details of the Yale football coaching system for the coming season have been completed after some months of conference and consideration, with the result that the Yale football team will make a new start next fall under the direction of experienced player-coaches. What the outcome will be, it is hard to say. New coaches and systems are no longer a novelty at Yale and in recent years the changes have not lifted the play of the eleven to the heights reached by the teams of past decades.

The personnel of the new coaching group promises well, for in Tad Jones, Mike Sweeney, Dr. Billy Bull, Arthur McBride and Clarence Olcott the Blue Hounds have brought together men who know football both from the playing and coaching standpoint. With Walter Camp in an advisory capacity and William Marting as freshman coach, the circle is well rounded out and the system in vogue results from the very beginning.

It must not be forgotten, however, that Harvard was the first to have a staff of coaches to direct a coaching policy, which is now firmly established at Cambridge, and that "speedy" rush at Princeton is well established along the same lines. Yale's new staff, which has reached this point where it is little short of complicated science and success against well developed systems cannot be achieved in a few months.

Many close observers hold to the opinion that the new group of coaches will not attempt radical changes but rather revert, to some extent, to the system in vogue before the slump of the past few years. While such changes as are necessary to bring the play up-to-date will, of course, be installed, the coaches are likely to go back over the past few seasons and pick up the broken threads, as Yale has had a coaching system since 1888.

Previous to that date there was no coaching policy. From 1889 to 1892 the captains did the chief coaching, advised by Walter Camp and assisted by returning graduate players. Then came a period of ups and downs, during which a succession of coaches were in charge and no particular graduate was at the helm. But strong graduate support was given the captains, and Brink Thorne's and Jim Rodgers' teams were striking successes. A third period then came in of ten years, beginning with McBride's 1899 team, during which the new traditional Yale football coaching was developed.

Under this system the captain had full power. Generally the preceding captain was head of field coach, Camp was chief adviser, and each year everybody came back and was assigned special position-coaching to do. During this period Yale won both from Harvard and Princeton eight times and lost twice. Sixteen victories, two in the four years.

From 1910 to 1913 the old system wavered or was regained year by year, each captain making attempts to stem the tide of disaster due to a diversity of coaches and to the fact which was the rise of stronger competitors and trying out new coaching systems. The last two years have seen a still more radical effort made to reorganize, but without success.

PRINCETON CREW WINS DEVR HARVARD VARSITY

Princeton, N. J., April 21.—Princeton's varsity eight won over Harvard in a spectacular finish on Lake Carnegie Thursday, crossing the finish line half a foot in the lead. The winners' time was 9:12½ and Harvard's 9:13. The junior varsity race was won by Harvard by two lengths. Time: Harvard, 9:48; Princeton, 9:55.

The Princeton seniors, after a spirited struggle at the start, took the lead, which they had increased to three-quarters of a length at the three-quarter mile post. Harvard moved up in stroke and gradually narrowed the distance between the two boats until they passed into the final springalm most even. Both crews made thirty-six strokes to the minute, but the last pull was with Princeton.

Captain Cochran of the winning crew stroked his men beautifully. At the three-quarter mile post he had dropped his stroke to thirty, increasing it to thirty-two, thirty-four and thirty-six as the Harvard crew crept up. Lund, the veteran who led the Harvard eight, made a magnificent start, after the mile and a half post had been passed, and was rapidly overhauling the Princeton boat when the finish was reached.

CANTILLON RELEASES THREE RECRUIT PITCHERS.

Minneapolis, April 21.—President M. E. Cantillon of the Minneapolis American Association club has announced the release of Lester Smith, Jack Hubbard and Robert Ingersoll, pitchers, to the Fargo club of the Northern league. Ingersoll was with the Millers for a time last season but failed to display Association speed and was sent to the Omaha club of the Western league, where he pitched good ball this spring. He was returned to the Millers but an attack of rheumatism has prevented him from rounding into shape.

FOUR MATCH GAMES STAGED AT MILLERS LAST EVENING

Four match bowling games were staged last night at the Miller alleys between local fives. In one of them the Blue Ribbons trimmed the Boswick bunch by nearly two hundred pins difference.

The Woolen Mills team had an easy time with Roseling's grocery team as they won by a margin of nearly one hundred and fifty pins. Two teams from the Janesville Contracting company met at the alleys last night and squad No. 2 won from the first five.

The game. The Swastika and Star Medal fives had a battle royal at the alleys last night. When the scores were added up for the final count it was found that they were a tie. Another game was rolled and the Medals won.

At the West Side alleys Hemming's Moose team lost to their brother lodge members, Schneider's fives. Only in the last event did Hemming's team have the lead on the winners' scores:

SAIER WINS OPENING GAME FOR THE CUBS

Eleven Inning Battle at New Cub Park Won By Chicago Nationals, 7 to 6.

—So Lose at Detroit.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Chicago, April 21.—A slashing single by Victor Saier sent over the run on Thursday that gave Chicago its opening game on the north side grounds in an eleven inning battle with Cincinnati, 7 to 6.

Thirty men took part in the contest, seventeen Cubs and thirteen Reds, and the last few innings saw pinch hitters and pitchers change about two to the round. Each side used four pitchers. The Cubs went into the eighth three runs behind and counted two.

In the ninth inning hits by Flack and Zimmerman tied the score and Williams' double and Saier's timely single made after Schulz purposely passed Zimmerman, scored the winning run in the eleventh.

Old Jinx Again.

Detroit, April 21.—Hellman's two base drive into the crowd in left field sent Veach home in the ninth inning with the run that gave Detroit a 2 to 1 victory over Chicago in the first home game of the season.

After two were out in Chicago's half of the eighth Feldt knocked the ball over the left field fence for the White Sox' only run.

Opening the ninth for Detroit, Vitti singled, advanced on Cobb's out and scored on Veach's single. Veach went to second on the throw and then came Hellman's hit. Coveleskie pitched great ball until the eighth, and Wolfgang never was in danger until the final inning.

The triangular meeting, arranged between Evansville, Bedford and Petersburg for May 6, has been cancelled to make room for the bigger event.

PLAN BASEBALL FOR GRADE SCHOOL BOYS

Graded School Baseball League Will Be Formed for Boys This Spring

By Y. M. C. A.

Because of the great success of the grade school basketball league which was conducted at the Young Men's Christian association during the past winter months, a baseball league will be organized and games will be played the different school lines. Letters were sent out to the principals of the ward schools today urging them to help in the first steps of organization. The committee promoting the league is composed of H. J. Center, boys secretary of the association, H. S. Lovejoy, E. B. Keck and H. C. Hue.

Each student who is a member of any of the teams must be up in his studies and be able to meet any of the qualifications stated in the set of rules. The first games will be played on Saturday, May 6th. All the schools who were members of the basketball league are expected to enter this new organization. Each school will have an organization meeting when a captain will be chosen and other officers elected.

MORRIS MILLER

In one of the Red practice games in the south Heine Groh trapped a fly ball and made a pretty play out of it. There was a fast runner on first base when the pitcher popped up a little fly to third base. Instead of catching the ball in a purely mechanical manner Heine let it hit the ground, scooped it up, and threw to second base, forcing the speedy runner and putting a slow man on first base. This is a play that is not seen nearly so often as it should be. It used to be common before the introduction of the infield fly rule, which prevents its use with men on first and second, because, when cleverly worked, it was always good for a double play under that condition. It is still available with a runner on first base and is a good play whenever the runner is a fast runner and the batter a slow man.

Practically all the more prominent players who last year and the year before were with the Federal league have secured positions with clubs in organized baseball. A list compiled shows that fifty-three have signed up with the major leagues and thirty-five with minor league clubs. Of these five are managers—Joe Tinker with the Cubs, Fielder Jones with the Browns, Harry Lord, Lowell, Rebel Oakes, Denver, and Bill Jackson, Peoria. Among those who have not as yet secured places are Jory Gansel, Fred Falkenberg and Otto Knabe. While the National league clubs have absorbed thirty-seven of these players, less than half that number have signed with the American league. The St. Louis and New York clubs being the only two in the junior major organization that have former Federal players on their rosters.

During a fanning bee the other day conversation turned to Larry Lajoie and the habit the Frenchman is said to have had of bawling out young players and making life miserable for them. A number of failures of young players with the Cleveland club were laid to Lajoie's door, but Bill Wambams spoke up in defense of the Frenchman. "In all the time I played alongside of him," said Wambams.

Do you know why Varsity Fifty Five is the most popular young men's suit in America?

Because its designers did more than merely create a style. They embodied in it the spirit of youth; the vigorous, forceful personality of the 20th Century young man.

Varsity Fifty Five is a general idea carried out in a large number of variations. You will find one or more of them expressing just the things you want. You'll see them all at our store.

Exquisite Grace in The Dancing Frock

Depends Upon the Corset

The dancing frock and party gown is too often deprived of the charm they deserve by a poorly fitting corset.

The Gossard Corset with its front lacing, gives you a figure, a grace, a style, an ease of motion possible in no other corset.

We have a special model for dancing that is extremely popular with all classes of dancers and especially with the professional who realizes the superiority of the Gossard.
